

Eternal God,
We have come together to pray as a congregation;
Yet, each of us is strangely solitary
in Your presence.
Each of us comes before You with special hopes and dreams
Each of us has personal worries and concerns.
Each of us has a prayer no one else can utter
Each of us brings praise no one else can offer.
Each of us feels a joy no one else
can share
Each of us has regrets which others cannot know.

And so we pray:

*If we are weary, give us strength.
If we are discouraged, give us
hope.
If we have forgotten how to pray,
remind us.
If we have been careless of time,
forgive us.
If our hearts have been chilled by indifference Warm them with Your mercy, and inspire us
With being together in the spirit of Your Holy Shabbat.*

Amen.

Rabbi Sidney Greenberg

The Rebbe of Tsanz was asked by a Chasid: What does the Rabbi do before praying? "I pray," was the reply, "that I may be able to pray properly."

May the door of this synagogue be narrow enough to shut out pettiness and pride, envy and enmity.

May its threshold be no stumbling block to young and straying feet.

May it be too high to admit complacency, selfishness and harshness.

May this synagogue be, for all who enter, the doorway to a richer and more meaningful life.

Beloved, come to meet the bride; beloved to greet Shabbat.

“Keep” and “remember”: a single command the Only God caused us to hear; the Eternal is One, God's Name is One; glory and praise are God's.

Come with me to meet Shabbat, forever a fountain of blessing. Still it flows, as from the start: the last of days, for which the first was made.

Awake, awake, your light has come! Arise, shine, awake and sing: the Eternal's glory dawns upon you.

Enter in peace, O crown of your husband; enter in gladness enter in joy. Come to the people that keeps its faith. Enter, O bride!

Why fixed prayer? To learn what we should value, what we should pray for. To be at one with our people, the household of Israel. To ensure that the ideals painfully learned and purified, and for which many have lived and died, shall not perish from the community, and shall have a saving influence upon the individual.

A Single Person Was Created

Only a single person was created in the beginning, to teach that if any individual causes a single person to perish, Scripture considers it as though an entire world had been destroyed, and if anyone saves even a single person, Scripture considers it as though a whole world had been saved.

Again, just a single person was created for the sake of peace--so that no one could say to another, "My father was greater than yours."

Moreover, only a single person was created in order to emphasize the greatness of God. For, whenever a mortal stamps many coins using one die, all the coins are alike; but when God stamps all human beings with the die of the first person created, each one of them is, nevertheless, unique. Therefore, every individual must say, "For my sake was the world created."

We praise You, Eternal God, Sovereign of the universe, whose word brings on the evening. With wisdom You open heaven's gates, and with understanding You make the ages pass and the seasons alternate; Your will controls the stars as they travel through the skies.

You are Creator of day and night, rolling light away from darkness, and darkness from light; You cause day to pass and bring on the night, separating day from night; You command the hosts of heaven! May the living and eternal God rule us always, to the end of time! We praise You, O God, whose word makes evening fall.

A guest comes to the king to test the knowledge of the king's son, and the young child is unable even to understand the halakhah because of its deep and complicated logic. But, because of the father's great affection for his son, he can't bear the distress his beloved son experiences in encountering such difficulty and in his incapability to comprehend. What does the father do? He finds a way to help his son begin to understand the halakhah and he shows him a path that might allow him to converse on that passage, virtually telling him the actual content of that legal passage.

The guest poses questions, and when the young boy is able to respond and engage in dialogue with a clarity of thought, the father rejoices, feeling delight and pride in his son, even though the latter's very ability to answer and discuss the passage is admittedly the doing of his father.

Cognizant of the father's delight, the guest goes on to raise further questions, and relying on his father's prodding, the son's understanding awakens and he proceeds to answer the difficulties posed by the guest...

We find that everything is of You and from You, and our own doing and endeavor is from You, of Your own power, and nevertheless You have great delight from this. And You feel pride in us as though we ourselves have really accomplished what we have done. And in this condition one can recognize the force of Your love and Your overflowing affection.

Dov Baer of Mezherich as recorded in Or Torah
translated by Aryeh Wineman

We cannot merely pray to You, O God, to end war; for we know that people must find their own path to peace, within themselves and with their neighbors.

We cannot merely pray to end starvation, for You have already given us the resources with which to feed the entire world, if we could only use them wisely.

We cannot merely pray to you to root out prejudice; for You have already given us eyes with which to see the good in all people, if we would only use them wisely.

We cannot merely pray to end despair; for You have already given us the power to clear away slums and to give fresh hope, if we would only use our power justly.

We cannot merely pray to end disease; for You have already given us great minds with which to search out cures and healings, if we would only use them constructively.

Therefore, we pray instead, for strength, determination and willpower...to do instead of just pray, and to become, instead of merely to wish.

With an eternal love have You loved Your people Israel. Torah and commandments, decrees and ordinances have You taught us. Therefore, Eternal our God, upon our lying down and our rising up, we will speak of Your decrees and will rejoice with the words of Your Torah and with Your commandments for all eternity. For they are our life and the length of our days and about them we will will meditate day and night. May You not remove Your love from us forever. Blessed are You, Eternal One, Who loves Your people Israel.

Prayer is speech, but not 'mere' speech. The word is not to be despised. Words have power over the soul. "Hear, O Israel!" is a cry and affirmation, a reminder of glory and martyrdom, a part of the very essence of our people's history. Our prayerbooks are but words on paper; they can mean little or nothing. Yet, the searching spirit and questing heart may find great power in their words. Through them we link ourselves to all the generations of our people, pouring out our souls in prayer with those of our brothers and sisters. These words, laden with the tears and joys of centuries, have the power to bring us into the very presence of God. Not easily, not all at once, not every time, but somehow, sometimes, the worshipers who offer up their hearts and minds without reservation will know that they have touched the Throne of Glory.

Inscribe them on the doorposts of your house and on your gates, so that you remember and do all My Mitzvot, and consecrate yourselves to your God. I am the Eternal your God, who brought you out of Egypt to be your God. I am the Eternal your God.

Deut. 6:5-9, Num. 40-41
translated by Barbara Holender

In the G'ulah, we recall the miraculous redemption at the Red Sea, and pray for the redemption of all peoples in the future.

Oneness

Eternal watch over my small domain
Of light and shadow
Those few people who share my love
And all others upon this earth
That sometimes shakes with thunder
And reverberates with lightening
Help us to live with fear
And conquer rage
Heal the hate that makes us kill
And covers the ground
With this red sea
That only You can part
So we may all walk through the wilderness
To Your realm of peace
Where all men and women are one
And sing Your blessed name.

Rabbi Dayle A. Friedman

G'ulah: Redemption

When will redemption come?

When we master the violence that fills our world.

When we look upon others as we would have them look upon us.

When we grant to every person the rights we claim for ourselves.

Once we were in bondage, then we were free. In that first liberation, our people perceived that God redeems time and event from the hands of tyrants. Now, we, too, acclaim God's power that makes for freedom. We sing the song that celebrates our deliverance from Egypt and all bondage:

Who is like you among the gods, O Eternal? Who is like You, majestic in holiness, revered by praise, the source of wonder? Your children saw Your majesty as the sea split before Moses. "This is my God," they recited. "May the Eternal reign forever and ever!" And it has been said: The Eternal One delivered Jacob and redeemed us from the hand of one stronger than ourselves. Blessed are You, Eternal, redeemer of Israel.

When the darkness is too dark for me, give me light, O source of light. Renew my vision, my hope, my dream, my faith that the darkness does not last, the sense that despair will not be the last word, and the courage to go on believing...

Rabbi Chaim Stern

When I call, be my answer, O God, my Champion.
In my times of trouble You have set me free:
Be gracious to me now, and hear my prayer.
Great ones of the world,
How long will you put me to shame?
How long will you love illusions and run after lies?
See how the Eternal One shows me marvelous love,
How the Eternal One hears my every prayer.
Tremble, then, and sin no more;
Look into your heart as you lie abed,
And hold your peace.
Let your offering be justice,
And trust in the Eternal One.
There are many who say,
Oh, that we could see some good,
But the light of Your presence, O God, has fled from us!
Yet You have put joy in my heart,
More than some have
From a rich crop of grain and wine.
Now, I will lie down in peace, and sleep;
For You alone, Eternal One, make me live unafraid.

Grant, O Eternal God, that we may lie down in peace, and raise us up, O Sovereign, to life renewed. Guard our going and our coming. Blessed are you, Eternal One, who spreads a shelter of peace over us, and over all your people Israel, and over Jerusalem.

Welcome alike the day and its labor, the night and its repose; throw yourself into the waters of life and swim bravely and without anxiety, for these waters are native to you; you were born to swim in them.

Accomplish what you can; endure what you must; understand what you may--and this do for yourself, but not only for yourself: do this for yourself and others.

In your prayer and your love, your doubt and your fear, seek out the still, clear voice within you.

Look inward for an answer to prayer. Find courage there, and endurance; find insight there, and the knowledge that you are part of the divine creation.

Know that love gives meaning and purpose to your journey. May such love be the fruit of your prayer.

Rabbi Chaim Stern

Prayer gives us the guidance we need. It opens the mind to the illumination of God. The prophets made their whole life an act of prayer--so they received the inspiration of God. Our humbler minds, standing much below the heights in which they stood, receiving for the most part only a reflected illumination, may now and then, by climbing a little higher, catch a glimpse of the direct light. Through prayer, we can receive the guidance of God to strengthen our hold on truth, goodness, righteousness and purity which are the laws for humanity emanating from the nature of God.

A person reaches in three directions:

out, to others.

The miracle of life is that in truly reaching in any one direction, one embraces all three.

Rabbi Nachman of Bratzlav

It is indeed a unique occasion at which the word kadosh is used for the first time: in the book of Genesis, at the end of the story of creation. How extremely significant is the fact that it is applied to time. "And God blessed the seventh day and made it kadosh, holy." There is no reference in the record of creation to any object in space that would be endowed with the quality of kedushah, holiness.

Those who keep Shabbat by calling it a delight will rejoice in God's realm. All who hallow the seventh day shall be gladdened by God's goodness. Shabbat is a festival of the spirit, . . . the most precious of days, symbol of the joy of creation.

To set apart one day a week for freedom, a day on which we would not use the instruments which have been so easily turned into weapons of destruction, a day of detachment from the vulgar, of independence of external obligations, a day on which we stop worshipping the idols of technical civilization, a day on which we use no money, a day of armistice in the economic struggle with our fellow humans and the forces of nature--is there any institution that holds out greater hope for our progress than the Sabbath?

For all these things, O Sovereign, let Your Name be forever praised and blessed. O God, our Redeemer and Helper, let all who live affirm You and praise Your Name in truth. Blessed are You, Eternal, Your Name is Goodness, and You are worthy of thanksgiving.

Eternal God,
We give thanks for the gift of life
Wonder beyond words;
The awareness of soul, our light within;
The world around us, so filled with beauty;
And the richness of the earth, which day by day sustains us.
For all these gifts and more,
We thank and bless You,
The Source of all goodness.

Shabbat of Love and Prayer Temple Sinai

When Miriam was sick, her brother Moses prayed: "O God, pray, heal her please!" We pray for those who are now ill. Source of Life, we pray:

Heal them

We pray for those who are affected by illness, anguish and pain.

Heal them.

Grant courage to those whose bodies, holy proof of Your creative goodness, are violated by illness and the pain of illness.

Encourage them.

Grant strength and compassion to families and friends who give their loving care and support, and help them to overcome despair.

Strengthen them.

Grant wisdom to those who probe the deepest complexities of Your world as they labor in the search for treatment and cures.

Inspire them.

Grant clarity of vision and strength of purpose to the leaders of our institutions and our government. May they be moved to act with justice and compassion and find the courage to overcome fear and hatred.

Guide them.

Grant insight to us, that we may understand that whenever death comes, we must accept it--but before it comes, we must resist it, by prolonging life and by making our life worthy as long as it is lived.

Bless and heal us all.

Mi Shebeirach

Mi shebeirach avoteinu, Avraham, Yitzchak, v'Ya'akov, Sarah, Rivka, Rachel, v'Le'ah, Hu y'varech virapei et hacholim. El na r'fa na la.

May the One who blessed our fathers, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and our mothers, Sarah, Rebekah, Rachel and Leah, bless and heal the sick. Please God, heal them.

Silent prayer

Grant me the ability to be alone;
may it be my custom to go outdoors each day
among the trees and the grasses,
among all growing things,
there to be alone
and enter into prayer, talking to the One to whom I belong.
May all grasses, trees and plants
awake at my coming.
Send the power of their lives into my prayer, making whole my heart and my speech through the life and spirit of growing things...

Rabbi Nachman of Bratzlav
Adapted by Rabbi Chaim Stern

If anyone comes to public worship and leaves with the feeling that nothing came of it, one should ask: Did I bring anything to it? Most often the answer to the second will supply the cause of the first. A stubborn heart, a rebellious heart, a cold heart that cherishes its coldness, a critical mind that looks for objects of criticism, will not profit. It is true of public worship to a high degree that only they receive who give. The influence of public worship, like that of electricity, is felt only where there is a capacity for receiving it. Stone and ice are spiritual non-conductors.

Gates of Prayer

May it be Your will, Eternal God, that love and harmony, peace and friendship may dwell among us.

Help us to look forward with confidence and hope. Guide us in the world with good companions and good intentions. When we rise up in the morning, may we find our hearts ready to revere You, and may our deepest longings be fulfilled for our good.

Wildpeace

Not the peace of a cease-fire, not even the vision of the wolf and the lamb, but rather as in the heart
when the excitement is over and you can talk
only about a great weariness.
I know that I know how to kill,
that makes me an adult.
And my son plays with a toy gun that knows how to open and close its eyes and say Mama.
A peace
without the big noise
of beating swords into plowshares, without words, without the thud of the heavy rubber stamp:
let it be
light, floating, like lazy white foam.
A little rest for the wounds-- who speaks of healing?
(And the howl of the orphans is passed from one generation to the next, as in a relay race:
the baton never falls.)

Let it come like wildflowers,
suddenly, because the field
must have it: wildpeace

Baruch Atah, Adonai, m'kadesh haShabbat.

Blessed is Adonai our God, Ruler of the universe, Creator of the fruit of the vine. Blessed is Adonai our God, Ruler of the universe. You hallow us with Your mitzvot and take delight in us. In God's love and favor, God has made the holy Sabbath our heritage, as a reminder of the work of Creation. It is first among our sacred days, and a remembrance of the Exodus from Egypt. O God, You have chosen us and set us apart from all the peoples, and in love and favor have given us the Sabbath day as a sacred inheritance. Blessed is the Eternal, for the Sabbath and its holiness.

And then all that has divided us will merge
And then compassion will be wedded to power
And then softness will come to a world that is harsh and unkind
And then both men and women will be gentle
And then both women and men will be strong
And then no person will be subject to another's will
And then all will be rich and free and varied
And then the greed of some will give way to the needs of many
And then all will share equally in the Earth's abundance
And then all will care for the sick and the weak and the old
And then all will nourish the young
And then all will cherish life's creatures
And then all will live in harmony with one another and the Earth
And then everywhere will be called Eden once again.

Hope

Hope is an orientation of the spirit, an orientation of the heart. It is not the conviction that something will turn out well, but the certainty that something makes sense, regardless of how it turns out.

We must praise the God of all, the Maker of heaven and earth, who has set us apart from the other families of earth, giving us a destiny unique among the nations. We therefore bow in awe and thanksgiving before the One who is Sovereign over all, the Holy One, blessed be God.

Please be seated

May we gain wisdom in our lives,
Overflowing like a river with understanding;
Our soul profound enough to cover the earth,
Loved, each of us, for the peace we bring to others.
May our deeds exceed our speech, and may we never lift up our hand
But to conquer fear and doubt and grave despair.
Rise like the sun, O God, over all humanity,
Cause light to go forth over all the lands between the seas,
And light up the universe with the joy of wholeness, of freedom, and of peace.

remember them.

In the rustling of leaves and in the beauty of autumn, we remember them.

In the beginning of the year and when it ends, we remember them.

When we are weary and in need of strength, we remember them.

When we are lost and sick at heart, we remember them.

*When we have joys we yearn

So long as we live, they too shall live,

For they are now a part of us, as we remember them.

Past and Future

Death and dying: two words in ordinary language,
An abstract noun and a present participle.
“Death: a permanent cessation of all vital functions.”
“Dying: the cause of occasion of loss of life.”
How concise is the dictionary!
How exact its definitions!

But death for us is a mixture of moods,
Tears, salt of self-pity, brine of resentment,
Anguish over things that never will be again,
Regret over things that could have been.
Bittersweet nostalgia,
Remembrance of that grey day,
A tear in the cloth, a handful of earth.

And now this moment
When together we cling to courage,
We who have the right to mourn.
It is the dignity of the soul
To hold on to the past.
It is the dignity of the spirit
To take hold of the future.

To love and to forgive
Others and ourselves.
To rise from grief,
To sew the torn garment,
To live, to love, to laugh,
And to remember
Always to remember.

Rabbi Harold M. Schulweis

Days are scrolls.
Write on them what you want to be remembered.

Epitaph

When I die
Give what's left of me away
To children
And old men who wait to die.
And if you need to cry,
Cry for your brother
Walking the street beside you.
And when you need me,
Put your arms
Around anyone
And give them
What you need to give me.

I want to leave you something,
Something better
Than words
Or sounds.

Look for me
In the people I've known
Or loved,
And if you cannot give me away,
At least let me live on your eyes
And not on your mind.

You can love me most
By letting
Hands touch hands,
By letting
Bodies touch bodies,
And by letting go
Of children
That need to be free.

Love doesn't die,
People do.
So, when all that's left of me
Is love,
Give me away.

Let God's great name be blessed for ever and ever.

Let the name of the Holy One, blessed be God, be glorified, exalted, and honored, though God is beyond all the praises, songs, and adorations that we can utter, and let us say: Amen.

For us and for all Israel, may the blessing of peace and the promise of life come true, and let us say: Amen.

May God who causes peace to reign in the high heavens, let peace descend on us, on all Israel, and all the world, and let us say: Amen.

May the Source of peace send peace to all who mourn and comfort to all who are bereaved. And let us say:

Let the new week begin
With our lungs filled with sweet smelling life

Let our eyes see each day
As its own reward--sunset to sunset

Let us taste truth and pass hope along
As we feed others our words

Let us touch that which is solid,
While remembering the intangible spirit

Let us hear and practice our lessons of peace
Listening carefully as emotions ebb and flow

Let us live in freedom until once again
